The task was to design an enlargement of the attic flat. The investor needed a new living room, a place to work (a small record studio) and a new festive dining place. The enlargement is located in the corner tower of the 19th century building. As there was not permitted to touch the rest of the flat, the concept came from the vision of a path, resulting into a central space of the sofa. This space is opened toward the sky. The record studio is situated on the lower floor.